Subject: Lender requirements for home mortgage loan: inspection of onsite wastewater management systems

Abstract

This report describes a survey of home mortgage loan lenders and their requirements regarding inspection of wastewater management systems prior to granting loans. I did not find a mortgage company that required such inspections unless it was mandated by state or local regulations or an obvious wastewater management malfunction was identified by an appraiser.

Methods

I conducted a systematic internet search for information about requirements by individual mortgage lenders regarding inspection of onsite wastewater management systems prior to granting a loan. I used the www.google.com search engine with the following search phrases: mortgage septic inspection, mortgage septic requirement, mortgage inspection wastewater. If the first twenty results for each of these searches yielded no useable information, I conducted similar searches on www.yahoo.com, and www.lexisnexis.com. I then contacted by phone the top ten mortgage companies listed in the 2005 Forbes 500 list to learn their requirements. In phone communication with individual mortgage companies, I inquired, “Does your company require borrowers to have an home inspection conducted including inspection of onsite wastewater management systems-septic systems?”.

Results And Discussion

My internet search and phone communications with representatives from mortgage companies failed to identify a lender that required inspection of onsite wastewater management systems in order to grant a mortgage (Table 1). Some law discussion forums indicated that certain unnamed lenders required such inspections, but my search suggested that these claims were unfounded. Such law discussion forums also indicated that the Federal Housing Authority/Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Department of Veterans Affairs required inspection of septic systems for homes purchased through their programs. However, these claims appeared to be incorrect (Appendices A and B). Personal communication with mortgage company representatives and the documents in Appendices A and B suggested that an inspection of wastewater management systems is only required when state or local regulations require it, or when an appraiser detects an obvious malfunction of the system.

SUBJ: Individual Septic System Inspections

1. This letter is to clarify VA policy requiring health authority approval of individual septic systems.

2. Health authority approval of individual septic systems will only be called for when the fee appraiser (or other source) indicates there is an obvious question as to the operation of the septic system. This can be any available information or comment that indicates there may be a problem, (e.g. detection of a strong odor in the area where the septic system is located, effluent bubbling to the surface, broken pipes, disclosure forms, or areas -- such as a particular subdivision, or county area -- where septic system failures have been know to occur).

3. This policy will become effective as of the date of this letter. If you have any questions, please call Mr. Richard Harris at (216) 522-3595.

4. We appreciate your cooperation and participation in the VA Home Loan Guaranty Program.
